The Technology Incubator is pleased to announce the acceptance of FormulaNow into the incubator program. Nikki Lamb, Doug Snider, and Aaron Lamb recently started FormulaNow and are in the early stages of launching their business.

FormulaNow is a combination of the FormulaNow dispensing machine and Formulease concentrated liquid infant formula, which together provides a convenient, sanitary and efficient process for warming and dispensing infant formula.

With the push of a button, liquid infant formula is prepared consistently every time.

FormulaNow is one of the top five winners of the InnovateND competition.

Nikki grew up in West Fargo and currently resides there with her husband Aaron and their 5 children. She is a graduate of the University of Mary and has over 10 years of business and sales experience.

Doug Snider is a graduate of NDSU and is a designer in Chicago, Illinois where he is employed as an architect and teaches at the Chicago Institute of Art. Doug has spent post graduate time working under Dr. Jeffrey Clark at NDSU's Archaeology and Technology Research Lab where he developed his extensive experience in design visualization.

Aaron Lamb is a Redwood Falls, Minnesota native and currently resides with his family in West Fargo. Aaron is also a graduate of NDSU. He has extensive experience abroad in both studying and teaching in L'Aigle France at a poly-professional school. Upon his return to the U.S., he worked for a number of years as a sales representative for Sara Lee's Coffee and Tea division.
